BECOMING FRIENDS

The origins of the Friends of the Texas Historical Commission (FTHC) lie nearly 12 feet below the surface of the Gulf Coast. In fact, the story can be traced all the way back to 1686, when La Salle’s ship La Belle met its fateful end.

WEE TALE

The THC marine archeologists were able to find La Belle using a map of Matagorda Bay, drawn by Spanish explorers nearly 350 years ago!

FRIENDS HELP FRIENDS

Friends Groups can raise money and help the Texas Historical Commission’s (THC) state historic sites with projects and events. The Landmark Inn Friends Group cut and dried bamboo pole, then strung them with new lines and tackle for the Kid Fish event. The Sam Bell Maxey House Friends Group helped restore the home’s 1860s formal gardens.

FOLLOW THE LADY BUGS (AND AVOID THE FIRE ANTS!) Find your way from start to finish through the formal garden the Friends of Sam Bell Maxey House recently cleaned up and planted to look like it did back in the late 1880s. Can you get all 25 points?

TRIVIA AND BONUS POINTS: Marilda Maxey was the first to bring crepe myrtles to Paris, Texas. Can you name another bush, flower, or ornamental plant the Friends planted this spring?

• Temporary pop-up retail establishments in Houston’s historic Emancipation Avenue neighborhood.

• Two students worked on the restoration of the Jamison Building in Texarkana.

• A cemetery preservation resource guide for volunteers to use within their own communities.
